Recasting History

"Every record has been destroyed or falsified, every book rewritten, every picture has been repainted, every statue and street building has been renamed, every date has been altered, and the process is continuing day by day and minute by minute. History has stopped. Nothing exists except an endless present in which the party is always right."

George Orwell 1984

Our monuments and memorials are being removed by the enemy. Four have been stolen in the night by masked men wearing bullet proof vests in New Orleans. How long before our Landseer lions and Lord Admiral Nelson are removed or melted down and replaced in Trafalgar Square by a Mandela or McGuinness? The lions represent every part of the Empire.

Reveille: A signal, as of a drum or bugle, sounded early in the morning to awaken military personnel and to alert them for assembly. A signal to arise.

The Party System and the Destruction of England

By Martin Cruttwell
www.camrecon.demon.co.uk

While we patriots are indebted to Candour for being the sole source of Ben Greene's fabulous exposé "The Party System and the Corruption of Parliament" it is a tragedy of gigantic proportions that since 1956 few if any of us have realised the significance of what he wrote, except myself, the late Wing Commander Leonard Young and the late Dowager Lady Jane Birdwood. About 15 years ago "Michael" Young and I established my website www.camrecon.demon.co.uk and as far as I know no other public media expression exists. The so-called Monarchist League is an inert sham.

Tragically since the days of the formation of the National Front - a movement founded by AK to co-ordinate all the disparate nationalist groups - patriots have continued the suicidal "divide and rule" path of nationalist parties. No doubt the late John Tyndall was a great patriot but probably the worst possible example in this context. Various leaders of the NF, the BNP have come and gone after infighting, not forgetting the latest and popular leader of British Democratic Party, ex BNP MEP Andrew Brons or Liberty GB who fielded a candidate against the NF Richard Edmonds at the Batley Spen by-election.. Then there are English Democrats under lawyer Robin Tillbrook etc and of course now UKIP ..etc etc....

What are all these patriotic groups doing wrong? They fail to understand how the system works and how they can correct it. You cannot challenge and expose it if you are part of it and have adopted and condoned all the mechanisms which the main parties use to destroy our England.

We are dealing with a System and the sooner that sinks in the better.

A rather simple but clever control system which takes away our rights or liberties to think and act as we wish, as individuals, when we vote for any PARTY!! Voting for a party signifies your consent to be governed by and subject to the entire "package" of policies in that manifesto!

The main clue lies in what Ben Greene wrote: "This (formation of disciplined parties) has resulted in the greatest revolution in the principles of English law and government since the dawn of English national existence. This revolution has however never been acknowledged. By retaining the forms, institutions and ceremonies of our Parliamentary heritage, though now rendered meaningless, the magnitude of the constitutional convulsion has been successfully disguised."

What is the nature of this Revolution so cleverly disguised by the retained ceremonies?

Very simply, the ancient laws which decided how we were legally governed and protected so that we lived our lives in freedom, that is a legal democracy, have been either repealed or allowed to stand but disregarded (perhaps because to repeal them would cause unwelcome attention) in order that a political democracy, operating outside legal constraints, would rule instead. So we have a Monarch, not allowed to function as the law requires.

A House of Commons dominated by unlawful Cabinet government and the party machine and not freely elected by the people.

A House of Lords now stacked with ex-party MPs because the Party Leaders have stolen the patronage of the Monarch, and a judiciary which has been corrupted not only by EU membership and a legal system opposed to Common Law principles but transferred from control of a very visible Lord Chancellor lawyer (sitting on the Woolsack in the Lords) and trained in the love of English Common Law to a Ministry of Justice under here-today-gone tomorrow politicians without any legal training, like Michael Gove and now Liz Truss!

All this and that which follows members of the patriotic parties unwittingly condone by playing the Party game.

The deadly serious damage is done by what are called "conventions" which enable party politicians to operate by "rules" convenient to their operational requirements instead of operating as required by law. As a result they have passed any law they like, under alien influences, with disastrous consequences for our beloved England. That is not democracy that is dictatorship, albeit with an "elective" tag.

The two most deadly conventions are that the Monarch, the Queen, must act on the "advice" of Her Ministers. In other words must consent to any law they put before Her and that Cabinet operates under "collective responsibility" so that no one in government is held responsible for any mistakes, however disastrous to our national well-being. They operate under a 30-year secrecy rule and will be dead before papers are released!!

I will come on to the devastating implications in a moment.

The government Front Bench together with the "independent" Speaker controls all the business of the House of Commons. The "bear garden" noise we see at PMQT is because the Opposition is always in a minority, has no power and therefore can only jeer.

We, the voters are required to give one party or another a majority".

There is of course the Statutory Instrument under which the Commons grants Ministers powers to "issue regulations" without any further reference to the Commons!!

Finally, there is a Parliamentary rule that an MP may only deal with matters relating to a constituent. You can work out the implications for yourselves.

All Candour readers must presumably be anti the EU. Here is a perfect example of how the dictatorship works. After Mr Heath got his "majority" in 1970 he proceeded to force the House of Commons to pass the legislation and Enoch Powell reported that dissident Tory MPs left the Whips Office "ashen faced" they had been so severely threatened. After the Lords it went to the Queen for Assent. Instead of the Queen saying "Mr Heath, the laws of England forbid that I transfer our sovereignty to a foreign power and moreover in 1953 I took a Solemn Oath to the English people to "govern according to our respective laws and customs" (this included the Dominions) and therefore I cannot sign" She assented!! The Coronation Oath Act 1688 the ancient contract for all-time between Monarch and people was broken.

In 1953 I was in the Mall as a little boy with my late father who was on leave from Hong Kong. We had just survived a dreadful Second World War, we were still a united people, a new young Queen was being crowned and there was hope in the air.

Little did we know what the party politicians were planning for us in the decades ahead, led by previous "refugees" who worked their way up into our government and were about to repay our kindness with treachery.

As if Heath's behaviour was not bad enough, many anti-Market-ers like myself campaigned for months on the streets of England in all weathers (before the internet and it was hard graft) and raised 1/2million signatures to Petition the Queen, our Common Law right, reaffirmed by the Bill of Rights, to stop Heath. It was ignored for the same reason. She has to obey Ministerial "advice".

In both cases our vital protection under the law cancelled by the party convention!! Are you starting to get the picture?

Do you wonder you feel helpless under these conditions? This is what Theresa May calls "liberal democracy".

Presumably the Queen has assented to every single bit of disastrous legislation ever since put before Her by treacherous party leaders of the Tory/Lib Dem or Labour variety. Whether it was further Treaties immersing us into the EU Soviet Socialist Republics, Race and Public Order Laws to prohibit discrimination so we English could not protect ourselves against the coloured invasion, or the growing Surveillance Laws, etc. Why did She? Was it because the late Queen Mary had impressed upon the young Princess Elizabeth the need to preserve the Monarchy at all cost? Was it because all hell would break loose from Republicans, politicians and the slave media? With the general public totally ignorant of the truth about our constitution such a constitutional row could be manipulated even into doing away with the Monarchy?

The answer is probably a combination of both reasons.

The party politicians claim that because they are "democratically elected" and have a "majority" that they represent the "will of the people" and that therefore there is no higher power Legal or Regal which can stop them!!

As you read on you will soon see this is pretty dangerous stuff.

The other disaster has been a party Cabinet out of control, so that under Blair/Cameron we had the Afghanistan war (allegedly to protect us from terrorists 5000 miles away but was really to do with the fact that a deal with the Taliban about an oil pipeline went wrong).

Then Iraq and several hundred thousand civilian casualties, then Libya under Cameron/Sarkozy and finally Syria, a secret undermining by the Cameron government only stopped by Russia (See 'Road to Damascus' by John Pilger). Not forgetting the huge bills for this warfare sent to us taxpayers, nor our troop casualties, while public services face cuts!! Not forgetting the justification this provided for terrorists to attack us in reprisal.

Now we have a Cabinet planning to hand over our Nuclear weapons to European control.

Of course, all these attacks provided the excuse for "refugees" pouring into Europe and instead of the deadly "liberal" Jo Cox's and Alf Dubs of this world attacking the corrupt politicians for causing the damage and suffering they attack the native British for not allowing more "refugees" in!! We must not forget that this political corruption is tolerating murder as a political weapon.

The beautiful Jill Dando was murdered on her doorstep because she was trying to expose paedophiles high in the BBC and in government.

Dr. David Kelly the scientist who said there were no WMDs in Iraq was murdered in an Oxfordshire field and John Giles the Rhodesian lawyer at the Lancaster House Conference in 1980. Both Giles and Kelly were said to have committed "suicide". Rubbish. That way the politicians can avoid a murder investigation, which Cameron ordered in the case of Soviet agent Litvinenko. Looks good for Cameron to be seen to be doing something!!

I am now going to complete what Ben Greene tried to do and drill down into the argument and demolish the claim by party politicians, which is at the base of our national crisis and their enormous corrupt power, namely, that because they have been elected "democratically" by the "majority" of the people they are the "single authority" with the power to govern and that no power Legal or Regal remains to stop them!

Remember, it is simply a vote for a Party which puts the government in control of the House of Commons instead of the other way around.

The following paragraphs should prove their claim to be "democratically" elected to be bogus and with it their authority to govern as they please shot down in flames. It is on the basis of this bogus but very powerful claim that they are governing according to the "will of the people" that they can require the Queen to do as they wish.

The failure of the entire nationalist movement after AK to understand, expose and exploit this flaw lies at the seat of our tragedy? If they had understood in the 1950s would we be in the mess we are now in? In my view there could not have been a Mr Heath without the Party System. There would have been no "elective dictatorship" in England to transfer to that open dictatorship in Brussels except under the Party System.

Indeed while the popularity of the Queen is heavily marketed by the BBC and other media to disguise the tragedy as Bagehot intended, it should be exploitable in our favour too if enough of us, now informed, were to demand restoration outside Buckingham Palace?

As Belloc & Chesterton write in their book The Party System, p.17,

"True democratic representation follows these three principles: 1) there must be absolute freedom in the selection of representatives 2) the representatives must be strictly responsible to their constituents and to no one else 3) the representatives must deliberate or consider in perfect freedom and especially be absolutely independent of the Executive or government."

All Parties nominate their candidates, decide on the policies the voters are allowed to have and control how the MPs vote if elected. The above three principles of true representation are thereby cancelled by all political parties!! Yes, we do the electing, but they dictate. The candidates represent their parties, not you. The candidates, if elected, are paid by you, the taxpayer, but are told how to vote by the party. Fair deal?

Now we come to the other ruse.

The simple manifesto "package" trick. This is the authorisation or consent they require from you to be governed by them!! It is called a vote for a party. That word consent is vital. I shall return to it later.

The party game which they require you to play involves choosing the next government by dividing us into competing camps. It involves voting for one or other of the "package" manifestos on offer, often several hundred pages long. According to Lance Price a former Labour adviser no one ever reads it all!! The dangers of consenting to something you haven't even read is pretty obvious. They play you one of two ways, they offer you a single issue like "saving the NHS" and by voting for that you consent to the whole "package" or they get you on traditional policies but slip in the toxic bit.

This is a clever totalitarian concept possibly originating from the Marx since Marx published his Manifesto in London about the time major parties were formed in the 1850s by Disraeli and Joseph Chamberlain.

It is totalitarian because in a truly free society freedom is "the ability to accept or reject one policy at a time". Denied this option under the party system the voter is therefore forced to choose which is the least bad "package" on offer. Even worse if they are all about the same?

This is the "divide and rule" party system which forces the voters into competing hostile camps because if he doesn't the "others" will get in and do him some damage.

The idea that a vote for any party removes power from the individual to make his/her own policy seems to have escaped the nationalist leaders who doggedly stay in their political cul-de-sacs as they copy the party system. Surely, the sum of all the free social choices made by free individuals is the real democracy, not this electoral party fraud?

Since the aim of Marx was to overthrow all the Monarchies by revolution he did it to the English very subtly through political parties formed by Disraeli and Chamberlain rather than by bloody revolution. How was the overthrow achieved? Overthrow of the Monarch, in whom is invested the people's sovereignty, is Treason.

"The Prime Minister replaced the Sovereign as actual head of the Executive when the choice of Prime Minister no longer lay with the Sovereign; the Sovereign lost the choice when strongly organized disciplined parties came into existence; and party discipline depends primarily on the degree to which the Member depends on the party for his seat". Sir Lewis Namier, Historian 1952.

All the above is the fraudulent basis upon which they claim they have your consent to govern and can tell the Queen what to sign!! This is the basis upon which all our ancient laws and protection have been made useless by the party "elective dictatorship". When you vote for any party you consent to this situation. When you are a party activist you consent to this situation.

All political parties are a variation on the same theme. They are required to be by the Electoral Commissars!! They must all have a Constitution and Party Rules. They all have the same effect on our legal constitution.

But what if they are all controlled by the same hidden force and the elections are a sham. In 1967 the Wilson government repealed the ancient Statute of Praemunire which prohibited acts of Treason so that Mr Heath could commit Treason in 1972. If the Tories had not passed the ECA 1972 Labour would have done next time in power. What other proof do you need? You can have the Tory version of the dictatorship or the Labour or Lib Dem version or UKIP version and if it is decided you can even have the BNP version, because they all operate in the same way. The computations are endless for the controllers. Once you have voted for a party candidate your control passes to the party. It is too dangerous to pass such power to anyone, especially someone you neither know nor trust!

UKIP the party is a fraudulent alternative. It is a party and operates as a control system like all parties. It has many good members who just do not comprehend. It appears to be anti-EU but its MEPS earn big money for nothing in Brussels but its non-discrimination immigration policy is the same as the other main parties and comes down from the UN Declaration on Human Rights which is incorporated into British law Mass Immigration will decide the fate of England and UKIP will not stop immigration. It has said so!! NO PARTY offers to repeal the anti-discrimination laws which would allow the native English the freedom to discriminate again and help to repel the invasion. Why were the Race Laws passed in the first place? Precisely to stop us, under pain of punishment, from peacefully rejecting the invasion. What does the reader think is going to happen in the next two years as the migrants flood in? Why does the reader think our politicians did this to us and when we protested, as is our right, they slapped even more laws on us? Under whose influence were they operating? No Englishman would do that to his own people willingly? What is the alternative? Charge a few token politicians with Treason before a people's Court or Grand Jury; Treason is the overthrowing of the Monarchy and the Rule of Law (they have certainly done that) and watch the rest run for cover? The British Constitution Group is training people in how to take out private prosecutions.

May be that is not in your power, yet. But I can tell you what is. Simply, if there were a massive refusal to vote for any party, (you and 4 million others) the party politicians can no longer claim a mandate. In other words, you have withdrawn your consent. That vital word again. You can do that in your arm chair. A massive refusal could not be ignored and a national demand for restoration could take place. As Winston Churchill once said" If you will not fight for the right when you can win without bloodshed..." he then went on to describe ever worsening situations which ended in bloodshed. The choice is yours. Tell your friends about this.

Restoration of the Rule of Law and restore the government to the Crown where it lawfully belongs. Whomsoever the Monarch appoints as Ministers must command the confidence of a FREE House of Commons, not a whipped one. A free House of Commons free from Party control can be obtained simply by voting only for a trusted Independent.

Remember: the Independent is paid by you and works for you.

We must get those existing institutions back into working order and so regain our lawful constitution. We can no longer allow our Universities to teach students lies or half-truths about our constitution.

As Professor Blackburn of KCL University (on the British Library website) has stated: The Queen is legally perfectly free to dissent. Surely She must be empowered by us to retake that power , to restore the laws the parties have ignored but are still on our statute books. Demonstrate outside the Palace? Demand the power be restored to the Queen to honour Her Oath? What a sick system which makes someone take an Oath and then cancels it???? You can do something about it.

To get our freedom back as individuals we must only elect Independent candidates whom we know and trust absolutely, who know the constitution & respect our freedoms to choose how we associate or lead our lives. Free to discriminate again as individuals. We must repeal the EU law NOT by wholesale incorporation into our system (as Mrs May plans) but by gradually dismantling the EU law which does not suit . Demand Repeal of all anti-discrimination laws which oppress us and destroy our freedom. Defend trial by jury at all costs. This is our last line of defence against political tyranny.

Two ancient laws, the Bill of Rights 1688 and Coronation Oath Act 1688 which should have protected us but can't because of the convention which you allow them to operate and which you could stop simply by refusing to vote for any party. Only in that way can we put things right.

WANTED

George Soros
(Real name Gyorgy Schwartz)
Billionaire Terrorist - International Sponsor of Terrorism, War and Genocide

Charged with Possessing Musical Weapons Of Mass Destruction

By Alison Chabloz

Alison Chabloz: The lady can be contacted on Facebook or Google to see and hear her sing. Very talented!

UK Director of Public Prosecutions, Alison Saunders, who was heavily criticised in 2015 for failing to bring a prosecution for child sex abuse against paedophile 'Lord' Janner, has finally given the go-ahead for the CPS to charge me under Section 127a of the Communications Act for two songs which I performed at the Grosvenor Hotel in London at last September's meeting of the London Forum. Details of the charges are 'restricted'. A CPS lawyer attached to the Special Crime and Counter-Terrorism Unit(!) has been tasked with the job of trying to have me prosecuted and convicted. The date for legal arguments is set for June 23rd and, pending the decision taken on this day, a full day's trial has been scheduled for July 17th.

Just a brief recap: wealthy Jewish 'charity', the Campaign Against Antisemitism (CAA), frustrated with police and the CPS's prior refusal to carry out any investigation into my subversive songs, went ahead with an extremely rare and exceedingly expensive private criminal prosecution against me last November. As explained in one of my previous blogs, we know from anonymous Internet Disqus account 'robbersdog' that within 24 hours of the private case against me being listed, I was arrested by Derbyshire police on suspicion of two trumped up charges of harassment along with another for incitement concerning my 2015 #quenelle at the Edinburgh Fringe and also for my songs. I was held in detention whilst police went to my parents' home and seized my laptop – but not the charger (more on this later) – after which I was bailed on condition not to contact my accusers.

The first hearing of the CAA private criminal prosecution for malicious communications by way of causing 'gross offence' for my song about 'Holocaust' survivors took place on December 15

2016 at Westminster Magistrates Court. The Zionist press reported amply on the affair and there is little need to expand here. Since then, in regard to court decisions concerning my case, I have learned that there is always a bitter-sweet outcome. Despite the first judge (I can't remember her name) already setting a trial date (the trial should have taken place yesterday but was adjourned – see below), the prosecution – remember, a wealthy Jewish 'charity which continually boasts of its close relationship with police, the CPS, the Prime Minister and the Home Office – was furious that this judge had granted me unconditional bail. The CAA failed to take me to the High Court for contempt, but they did succeed in dragging me halfway back across Britain the day before Christmas Eve to have Chief Magistrate, Emma Arbuthnot, impose stricter bail conditions. The Zionist press again duly reported with all the usual labels.

Despite this assault on my freedom, in the three months which have elapsed since then, I have performed and spoken twice in France, again at the London Forum in February and completed a nine-day, eight-city tour of Canada. Whilst in Canada, I made the front pages of The National Post. There were also reports in several regional newspapers and an article from the BBC. Apparently, Canadian Jewish groups were most upset that a 'notorious British "Holocaust" denier' had been allowed into Canada and, according to these same groups, this failure on the part of the Canadian immigration authorities would be one of the incriminating factors connected to the recent series of bomb threats sent to synagogues. Since news broke this week that the person responsible for these threats was an Israeli Jew, the Zionist press has been unsurprisingly coy. The culprit was 'mentally ill', so they claim.

Back to the first hearing on December 15 when my solicitor had initially requested that the CPS take over the case. At the time, the judge granted the CPS 28 days to reach a decision rather than the usual 14 days because of Christmas and New Year. January 12 came and went and it wasn't until March 7 that we heard that the CPS was finally taking over and would proceed to trial. Why did it take the CPS 82 days to come to a decision, ignoring due process, not to mention my human rights as a defendant? A month earlier, on the advice of one of my sources, I started looking into possible conflicts of interest regarding District Judge Arbuthnot, wife of former Tory MP James (Baron) Arbuthnot, chairman of the parliamentary Conservative Friends of Israel 2011-2015.

Often, the best place to search the Internet is Google images. I simply entered the name of the judge and 'Conservative Friends of Israel' and, hey presto!, up popped four images of DJ Arbuthnot on the CFI website as part of a delegation to Israel, no doubt all expenses paid (see Al Jazeera four-part documentary, "The Lobby"). My solicitor immediately requested that DJ Arbuthnot step down.

By March 7 when the CPS announced they were taking over, we still had no news of District Judge Arbuthnot's eventual recusal. On Wednesday March 22, two days before the trial, the CPS prosecutor asked the court for an adjournment, which is what my lawyer had originally asked for back in December, the main point being that the then judge had already set a trial date, therefore obliging the CPS to follow through to trial if they decided to take over, which is now the case. On the advice of my barrister, I consented and the matter was aired in court on March 23 in front of District Judge John Zani. Yes, Baroness Arbuthnot had finally recused herself – quite a victory which, of course, has been completely ignored by the Zionist press. Even the self-proclaimed mouthpiece for freedom of speech, Spiked, has failed to report on my case, probably because they don't like what I say. Hypocrites.

When I first saw the name 'Zani', I was a little nervous. However, it appears that it is an Italian surname – perhaps the origin of the English for 'zany' – and also an anagram of... OMG !! Joking aside, Judge Zani refused to revert to unconditional bail and I am still under the strict gagging order imposed by Friend of Israel Judge Arbuthnot. Despite there being no anti-revisionist law in the UK, I am practically condemned already. The CAA, a pro-Israel, now-recused judge and the Crown have together managed to stifle my right to freedom of expression as well as preventing me from earning my crumb as a performing artist in my own home country.

Back to the new charges. Perhaps realising that they would fail to prove jurisdiction over me for the songs I uploaded from Switzerland to my YouTube channel in May and June of last year, the CPS is now hedging its bets on my performance of the two songs concerned at last September's London Forum. Previously, I had wondered why only one of my songs was being prosecuted because the second is arguably more 'revisionist' than the first. The answer must surely be that the second song is a response en musique to the trolling of me by the original private prosecutor?

The CAA private prosecution admitted its connection to two anonymous troll accounts in papers submitted to court on December 23rd. Without going into too much detail, one of their solicitors failed to remove a fatally incriminating note from the submitted papers. The phrase, in brackets, reads something along the lines of:

'Remarkably, she also correctly guesses which Twitter account I use'.

This damning error no doubt explains the hasty deletion of a number of tweets, @ name changes of certain Twitter accounts and total silence about my case from the CAA since last December's bail hearing.

Now, the CPS wants to bring charges for this second song which deals implicitly with one particular CAA troll and his 18-month long smear campaign and daily targeting of me which includes harassment of my family, my friends, my career, my professional associations and even my own folk band. If and when the time comes, I look forward to explaining that, rather than responding to this targeting by 1. Being silenced (my accusers' ultimate aim) or 2. by abusing them in the same way I have been abused for nigh on five years, I chose to respond in the most elegant and effective way I know (and for which I was professionally trained): that is, to write songs – my very own weapons of mass destruction.

In order to be able to provide concrete evidence of the CAA's tactics of targeting, stalking, harassment and entrapment via anonymous Twitter accounts, I need my laptop which was seized last November by Derbyshire police. Because there are two ongoing cases, I have two different sets of lawyers. This is causing complications for the recovery of evidence stored on my device which would enable me to defend myself properly. My solicitor in London cannot demand the immediate return of my computer because it was seized for a different set of pending charges as explained above. My solicitor in Buxton, Derbyshire, is assigned only to defend me during detention and therefore doesn't seem to be able to recuperate the device either.

On the same subject, as already mentioned, the policeman who seized my laptop last November failed to seize the charger at the same time. Apparently, a different officer turned up at my parents' house last Thursday morning March 23 (whilst the adjournment was being discussed at Westminster Magistrates Court) asking for the charger. Yes folks, my laptop - which not only contains all the files I need to perform and create music, all my sheet music and backing tracks, but also an entire library of screenshots documenting the smear campaign against me by CAA trolls and others has been sitting in a police office for four and a half months FOR NOTHING. The cyber crime unit employs geeks capable of cracking any password and deciphering multiple layers of deleted files, yet these same geeks are apparently incapable of finding a fucking charger? No wonder our country is in such a sad state.

My parents had another unwelcome visit earlier this week, this time from BBC journalist Martin Bashir, Religious Affairs Correspondent. Does the BBC consider the 'Holocaust' to be a religion? Bashir had already tried to contact me via my solicitor and we did have a brief conversation after someone gave him my mobile phone number (hello, Glossop police?!). I politely declined to comment. Note, the Beeb didn't send just any old hack. According to The Guardian, Bashir would be 'one of the world's most famous journalists' thanks to his interviews of Princess Diana and Michael Jackson, both of course now deceased. Eek! Thankfully, my parents were not at home and Bashir and his cameraman were shooed away by the neighbour. Was this an invitation to for me to speak on terms set down by some corrupt establishment Zionist doormat? After decades of propaganda lies about the 'Holocaust', is the BBC suddenly going to start reporting fairly about revisionism? Rather early for April Fools, methinks.

I'll be making a couple of alternative media appearances next week, starting with the Richie Allen Show next Monday March 27th at about 8.20pm (TBC). Then, rendezvous June 23rd, Westminster Magistrates Court at 10am for the legal arguments. Your freedom of speech depends on it (and your taxes are paying for it). In the meantime, heartfelt thanks to all those who have shown so much support. Donations are most welcome via Paypal at the address www.paypal.me/ajctmusic

To sum up, the CPS has surely opened a veritable can of worms. My case is yet another example of British democracy and legal process being skewed by an illegitimate foreign power: Israel. The fact that charges are being laid against songs which I performed the London Forum, where I was introduced and thanked at the end by Jez Turner now also the subject of a re-opened investigation following pressure from demonic lobbying group CAA is certainly not benign. If I am arrested and jailed for writing this so be it. If my accusers, along with police and the CPS, fail to understand one thing, it is that I am not afraid to go to prison for my beliefs and political convictions. If they wish to jail an artist and make a free speech martyr of someone for posting humorous songs on the Internet which make fun of liars, then they are most welcome to come and find me. They have my number and my IP address.

Alison Chabloz, 25/03/17.

Update next issue.

Circumstances have changed since this article was written but it is still extremely relevant and I think it important we keep events in sequence to aid in understanding how the enemy works. The CPS (Crown Prosecution Service) is being told how high to jump by their Zionist controllers. Catch 22. The more we tell the truth the more guilty we are. CT.

The State of the 'Right' In Australia

By Steve Godfrey

australiannationalaction@yahoo.com.au

To comprehend the Australian political scene of 2017 we must understand it in its correct context. To do that we must look at our origins as a Penal Colony, the role of the Catholic Church, the Irish/trade union/Labor Party nexus, the Labor Party 1958 Split, post-war arrival of 'Southern Europeans' and 'Ethnics', the resultant pressure from censorship laws post-Vietnam War fallout, and a declining White birth-rate.

OUR ORIGINS: You ask: 'what is the State of the Right in Australia today?'

To understand Australia you must return to our origins as a Penal Settlement. Although RN Capt Cook claimed our Terra Nullius ('Empty Land') for Britain in 1770 no settlement took place till 18 years later, in 1788. Why? The British had to put down a revolt in another colony, North America. They failed. One major reason was they had permitted entry to Independent Protestants and free-thinkers.

These inevitably called for equal status with the Mother Country and, failing that, Independence. The American War lasted from 1776 till 1783.

FRENCH FACTOR: In 1787 it was learned the French were headed to Australia. We must recall the context. Britain and France were engaged in a global war. Britain had captured India and Canada off France; French aid had brought victory for the American rebels. Now Australia was 'up for grabs'. The British dispatched a Fleet of settlers. Not freemen this time but white slaves. ¼ were Irish captured in the various rebellions. The rest were petty thieves from South London, the origins of our dialect being their 'Flash' or 'Kiddie-speech' argot. Soon after the arrival of the First Fleet at Botany Bay (Sydney) a French flotilla was spotted nearby. This later disappeared without a trace. Convenient.

TRANSPORTATION: Potential victims were given a choice: "death or 7-14 years hard labour followed by life-time banishment". Most chose Transportation. Given the distances, some have compared it to "being sent to the Moon". These timid masses were soon winnowed down by transport on the same ships that took slaves to the West Indies. The survivors were, on arrival, 'sold' (leased) to freeholders, mostly upper-class English who ran large estates.

DISCIPLINE: As a Penal Colony rule was directly by the military under the governor. Royal Marines were eventually replaced by a selected NSW Corps. Floggings and executions for minor infractions were common. The two revolts, in 1804 and 1854, were both led by Irish. Survivors were massacred. Harsher sub-colonies were set up to curb 'malefactors' and 'recidivists': Moreton Bay (Brisbane) Van Dieman's Land (Tasmania), Norfolk Island, etc. Cruelty became the norm. Transportation only ended in 1868 after 160,000 souls had arrived.

DOWNTRODDEN MINIONS: This was a population gulled and beaten, downtrodden to never repeat the American heresy. E.g. we have never had a Bill of Rights, etc. Is it any wonder our boys were so happy to 'flock to the colours' in the 1914-1919 and 1939-45 wars? They were eager to prove their subservience to their 'Mother'. This is the best way to comprehend the perceived Aussie 'swagger' - the abused child seeking parental approval. Saw our troops die at Gallipoli in 1915, Greece in 1940 and Singapore in 1942.

ANGRY CATHOLICS: Another legacy of transportation and 80 years of white slavery is Roman Catholic resentment. Given their much higher birth rates by 1960 the RC were 40% of our population. Their resultant lower socio-economic status made them the backbone of the trade union movement. In 1891 these founded the Labor Party (spelt Labor NOT Labour as they "wanted nothing of Britain") following a near civil war in Queensland between large estate holders ('squatters'), their workers ('shearers') and the Protestant-run, pro-squatter Queensland State Army. Is the basis for our National Song, Waltzing Matilda.

IRISH/LABOUR VICTORY: The union victory in Queensland led directly to the 1893 election of the world's first popularly elected Socialist government. Women had voting rights, etc years before Britain. Irish MP's lamented: "I can be an MP here but not in my Homeland". This may explain why Australia could send only Volunteers to WWI and WWII, as the RC Church, their unions and ALP combined would not allow Conscription. The government lost two referenda on the issue, in 1916 and 1917.

OUR RECENT PAST: In 1972 Australia elected its first Leftist government in 23 years, Gough Whitlam's Australian Labor Party. Was full of angry, eager young Maoists, based on the Moratorium, a mass-based Leftist movement built on opposing the war in Vietnam. These were angry at the Catholic Church for splitting the ALP in 1958 into two rival factions, one pro-Catholic/anti-Communist (DLP/NCC*) and the other anti-Catholic/Ultra-Left.

*Trained in infiltration and subversion, with alleged links to the CIA, National Civic Council began in 1936 but still operates. Blamed with keeping ALP 'out' for 23 years.

THE VIETNAM WAR: Unlike Britain, Australia had sent troops to fight alongside US forces there, 1962-72. We sent 50,000 men (RAAF, RAN, RAA) to Vietnam over ten years. We lost 500 killed and thousands wounded. Like the US, 'The War' caused a social revolution at home. One result was a landslide for Whitlam in 1972. He copied many of policies of fellow Leftist, Pierre Trudeau in Canada. One emphasis was on anti-racism. This led both countries to create a powerful Human Right Commission whose onerous laws only grow more oppressive each year.

SECTION 18C: Of particular concern is Section 18C of the Race Discrimination Act. This outlaws "any comment that may intimidate, insult or offend any group by gender, race or religion" to paraphrase it. In early 2017 US President Trump listed 81 Islamic attacks worldwide that were "mis-reported or under-reported" including five in Australia. This is true. All our attacks described as 'by mentally ill persons'. Why? Fear of S18C which carries fines of AUD$150,000 and two years gaol. Given this background, the Right in Australia still march, rally and leaflet-drop but we are more circumspect, prosaic and inventive.

THE SCENE TODAY: One group dominates the Far Right scenes here, Australia First. Even it seeks to play the Parliamentary 'game' of elections along with the many small 'Right' parties. At the last Federal Election 25% voted neither Left or Centre but for such Independents. However, the System has 'built-in checks' to disallow us. One is to allow registration of a multiplicity of like-minded groups.

TOO MUCH RIGHT: 1998 Federal election came one year after the 'Port Arthur Massacre' of 35 tourists by a 'lone gunman'. Resultant 1997 gun-ban saw four million legal gun-owners deprived of their long arms. Shooters responded by forming four rival registered political parties, which in 1998 received 2.5% of votes each, neutralizing the 'Right-wing vote', as in July 2016. Surprisingly, there is no shortage of candidates willing to challenge the 'status quo'.

EPONYMOUS PARTIES: Our largest small, independent parties are named for their founder-leaders hence: Pauline Hanson's One Nation (PHON), Bob Katter's Australian Party (KAP), the Nick Xenophon Group (NXG), the Jacquie Lambie Network (JLN), Fred Nile's Christian Democratic Party (CDP), Democratic Labor Party (DLP) in Victoria, etc. Each of these has seats in the various State, Territory or Federal Parliaments and work often collaborate. In our last Federal Parliament the 'minors' held the 'balance of power' in the Senate. We rarely allow the same party to rule both Houses. Last time was 2004. It was a disaster!

REGIONALLY-BASED PARTIES: Our minor parties are regionally-based in the six States and two Territories. Only the Australian Labor Party, Liberals and Greens are truly nationwide, attracting funding from unions and multinational corporations. KAP and PHON are Queensland-based, NXG is based in South Australia, JLN in Tasmania, CDP in NSW, with DLP and Rise Up Australia in Victoria.

MINORS AND MAJORS: This keeps them in power and excludes the many 'minor' parties. How many? At the last NSW State elections 71 registered parties stood (minimum membership: 150), amongst them the Hunters and Fisher Party, Four-Wheel Drive Party and the Sporting Shooters Party of Australia. The three above each obtained Upper House seats. Minor parties do well in State Upper Houses where, like our Federal Senate, they need only 7.5% of the vote to get a seat. However, in Lower House seats it is mainly the 'majors' who predominate. This is not just because it is difficult to obtain 51% of the vote.

PREFERENTIAL VOTING: Australia uses Preferential Voting not First Past The Post as in the UK. When the majors feel threatened they actually 'swap' preferences. A vote for ALP (Centre-Left) can elect the LNP (Centre-Right) and vice versa. In 1998 Pauline Hanson got 45% of the Oxley vote but ALP and LNP 'swapped' votes for ALP to win. Pauline lost as others refused to preference her. Same occurred in 1998 Queensland State Election, cheating PHON of power. They led in 34 of 89 seats but ALP-LNP 'swaps' saw PHON win only 11 seats.

CHRISTIAN PARTIES: We have church-based parties: Family First run by the AOG (Pentecostal) church; CDP by the Uniting Church; RUA by Christian Outreach Centres (Pentecostal); DLP by Catholics. Like their fellow Rightists, they run against each other. Norm is nine parties per seat, 13 at by-elections.

MINOR RIGHT: Aside from this there are groups, like ANA, which avoid the expensive pitfall of elections. We concentrate on 'awakening' white lumpens to their fate. Results are mixed. Meagre budgets and low memberships mean we battle for mind-space with the Murdoch press. He owns 12 of our 15 daily newspapers, all our weekly magazines and our only cable Network, Foxtel.

Yours in The Struggle

Some Thoughts to the Editor from Subscribers

"Dear Colin,

The review in Candour of Partisan (For the review of the book by Fenek Solere and order information see Candour double issue 859 - 860, June - July 2015) and earlier reviews of it and the review of The Camp of the Saints in the same issue of Candour all make a fundamental error. They miss the key point which is that the schemes of the One World Plotters only succeed primarily because the soldiers and police place their loyalty to the 'state' before their obligations to their own people and secondly because the mass of the middle class place respectability before survival. As Spengler wrote: 'The principle characteristic of the bourgeoisie is cowardice.....

.....the right wing has suffered from too many people who do not put principles first.' "

This from our longest serving subscriber.
Since 1955!

Dear Colin,

I loved the latest issue of Candour as I am a H. Rider Haggard fan. I was given King Solomons Mines and She when I was child and went to the library and second hand bookshops to read all the rest of them. The ones I like best are The Ivory Child, The Holy Flower and Child of the Storm. Alan Quatermain was based on Alan Selous. I have his autobiography and the Rhodesian special forces unit the Selous Scouts were modeled on him.

Yours JT. England.

Loyalty Forever: Sergeant Stubby U.S.

Whatever our opinion of wars and those who cause them we must remember the terrible suffering of the animals forced to participate. In Feb 1918 Stubby's battalion was hit by a poisonous gas attack. Stubby survived and his nose was now acutely sensitive to gas attacks sniffing it out early and waking the soldiers giving them time to don their gas masks. He found wounded soldiers and was wounded by shrapnel. Back in the US he met three presidents, led hundreds of parades and became the official mascot of Georgetown University.

Fragments of Empire

Part 10

Montserrat

By Rob Black

candourwebmaster@yahoo.co.uk

Montserrat is one of the Leeward Islands in the Eastern Caribbean. The island is approximately 10 miles long by 7 miles wide. The terrain is of a volcanic nature and very mountainous. The climate is tropical and mild, and there is little seasonal variation in temperature or precipitation. The average temperature ranges from lows of 70–76 °F to highs of 80–86 °F.

There is archaeological evidence of pre-Colombian native Indian settlement, but the island was uninhabited when in November 1493, Christopher Columbus passed Montserrat in his second voyage. He named the island Santa María de Montserrate, after the Santa Maria de Montserrat Abbey in Spain. Montserrat translates as 'serrated mountain'.

The island became an English Colony in 1632. The first settlers were largely Irish Catholics from nearby Saint Kitts, who were sent there by Sir Thomas Warner, the first British governor of Saint Kitts. They were joined by other Irish people, transported during the conquest of Ireland by Oliver Cromwell, as well as by English colonists. The colonists built an economy based on the production of sugar, rum, arrowroot and sea island cotton, cultivated on large plantations manned by slave labour which increasingly came from Africa.

Montserrat was captured twice by the French for short periods, but was finally restored to Britain in 1783.

Slavery was abolished in the British Empire in by the 'Slavery Abolition Act 1833', and in 1857 the British philanthropist, chartist and founder of the Anti-Slavery Society, Joseph Sturge, purchased a sugar estate to prove it was economically viable to employ paid labour rather than slaves. Numerous members of the Sturge family bought additional land. In 1869 the family established the Montserrat Company Limited and planted lime trees, started the commercial production of lime juice, set up a school, and sold parcels of land to the inhabitants of the island. Thus, much of Montserrat came to be owned by smallholders.

Between 1871 and 1958, Montserrat was administered as part of the Crown colony of the British Leeward Islands. The two world wars of the 20th century largely passed the island by, although a small number of men served with the Leeward Islands contingent of the British West Indies Regiment in the first war. The island also raised £1,000 (equivalent to over £40,000 today) for the war effort and donated £250 of guava jelly for convalescing wounded patients.

In the 1950's, with the winds of change beginning to break up the British Empire, an ill-fated attempt was made to form a West Indian Federation, a political union of the many British Caribbean possessions. It was intended for the federation to become independent of Britain as a single unit. Montserrat became a part of this union, but the Federation only lasted from 1958 and 1962 before it collapsed due to internal political conflicts.

Montserrat then opted to remain with Britain, originally as a Crown colony, and today as a British Overseas Territory.

Hurricane Hugo ravaged the island in 17 September 1989, destroying 90% of the island structures, as well as the tourist industry. Worse was to follow.

On 18 July 1995, the previously dormant Soufrière Hills volcano, in the southern part of the island, became active. Eruptions took place between 1995 and 1999 and destroyed Montserrat's capital city of Plymouth. The southern half of the island was severely affected and rendered uninhabitable. It was designated as an exclusion zone, and access is severely restricted. Volcanic activity still continues, though things have been relatively quiet since 2010.

Between 1995 and 2000, two-thirds of the island's population of 13,000 was forced to flee, primarily to the United Kingdom, leaving fewer than 1,200 people on the island by 1997. Numbers have slowly increased to around 5,000, but many former islanders have not returned.

With the permanent loss of Plymouth, buried under many feet of mud and debris, the capital moved to the town of Brades, while a new capital is being built at the nearby Little Bay. The original airport had also been destroyed, and a replacement opened in 2005.

Government is executed through a Governor appointed by the Crown, a Cabinet which has the general control and direction of government, and a Legislative Assembly. The Governor, currently Elizabeth Carriere, retains responsibility for external affairs, defence, internal security including the police, aspects of the public service and regulation of offshore finance. A new constitution for Montserrat came into force on 27 September 2011. This new constitution gives more power to the government of Montserrat in the field of international relations and strengthens and expands the rights and freedoms of those living on Montserrat.

Montserrat's economy was effectively destroyed by the volcanic eruption, and today is dominated by the rebuilding of the island's infrastructure and re-housing the population. Tourism and agriculture are recovering and long term prospects for the island are good, given the significant public investment in Little Bay town and port as well as ferry and air connections. The island's bane - the volcano - may eventually turn out to be its salvation through geothermal energy. Already sand mining is underway, and is virtually the only export, while tourists come to gaze upon the ruins of Plymouth, the “Caribbean Pompeii”. The Montserrat government hopes to aim to grow its declining and ageing population back to pre-crisis levels. Currently around 25% of the population are immigrants, largely from other Caribbean countries. The population is largely of black African ancestry, with small numbers of people of white European descent and of mixed descent. The official language is English, but most Montserratians also speak a Creole language similar to that spoken in Jamaica. British taxpayers have invested more than £400m in aid to the island since the start of volcanic activity in 1995. This was initially in the form of humanitarian assistance and is now focussed on rebuilding public infrastructure and the provision of basic public services. The aim is to make Montserrat self sufficient, though this is currently a long way off.

It is difficult to see how Montserrat can ever become fully independent, so this ‘fragment of empire’ looks set to remain a British territory for the foreseeable future.

The flag of Montserrat. As a British dependent territory the island flies the United Kingdom (UK) flag. The coat of arms dates from 1909, and shows a woman dressed in green, holding a cross and harp. The cross is symbolic of Christianity while the harp and woman recall the Irish immigrants that settled on the island in 1632.

Film Fun! Sewers of Gold

I have to say a big thank you to the friend I was chatting to recently when I mentioned a movie I had seen when I was about fourteen but whose title I could not remember. He knew the film and it turned out to have had several titles and it is quite a cult classic not unsympathetic to a cavalier fascist line. You can now find it on Google under the title Sewers of Gold (It is also known as The Great Riviera Bank Robbery and Dirty Money).

Released in 1979 Sewers of Gold is based on the story of a successful bank robbery in 1976 organised by Albert Spaggiari, a former French paratrooper and friend of the French OAS. He and his men broke into the vault of the bank Societe Generale in Nice from below using the sewer system for access.

When I found it again on YouTube I was delighted to find that it is as good as I fondly remember. So often these things can be a big let down. Not this time.

Fascism can be fun and sexy. I had forgotten that.

It is all Very Simple Lies have Mud Feet

By Manuel Sotil

In light of the cruise missiles fired into the sovereign nation of Syria by the duplicitous President Donald Trump on April 6 2017 we can see that, yet again, we fell for the old find the pea under the cup routine. We really are dopes!

Syria divested itself of all chemical weapons by mid - 2014. Not only were all chemical stocks to be destroyed, but also all equipment to manufacture such weapons. The USA agreed that Syria has complied with the UN mandate for the destruction of all chemical weapons.

So if Syria had used Sarin gas as charged by the United States, that means that Syria had cheated on its obligation to give up its chemical weapons arsenal (had hid some of it), or had subsequent to the destruction of such an arsenal, re-acquired chemical weapons. In which case, the United States, which is raring for an excuse to invade Syria (on behalf of Israel), would have made one hell of a stink about such a violation.

The United States said absolutely nothing.

On the other hand, the US with its European partners destroyed Libya and massive amounts of weapons were seized and transferred to ISIS, Al Nusra (McCain’s “moderates”) and other terrorist groups via Turkey. Included in these weapon transfers were the precursor chemicals for the production of Sarin gas. The transfer of such precursor chemicals was approved by no other than Hillary Clinton, the secretary of State. This happened about the time the US Ambassador to Libya was murdered, while Hillary did her nails.

(Google London Review of Books for the article “Whose Sarin?” by Seymour M. Hersch.)

In all likelihood, whatever gas attack occurred on civilians, it had to be done by those who had the gas or the precursor chemicals to manufacture the gas: the terrorist rebels.

Why would President Assad of Syria bring down the hatred of the world on himself by using filthy chemical weapons when he and his people are winning the war?

* * * *

Incredibly I also picked up on something no one else seems to have commented on. The title music at the beginning and end played on pipes is a version of the Brownshirt marching song The Horst Wessel!

The principal actors are, the then very young, Ian McShane and Warren Clarke, who both moved on to major TV series, etc. Lovejoy and Dalziel and Pascoe to mention but a couple. In fact I can see an article for a future issue emerging from this pub banter. Keep reading Candour.

Albert Spaggiari. OAS, Paratrooper and bankrobber. Above all a fun loving patriot. What a great CV!

Candour Extra!

Subscribers Only No. 869 June 2017

Candour Lives!

Our brave little journal survives and will continue to do so from a new location toward the end of 2017 with your continued support. I will not sully the pages of Candour or the Candour Extra! with the names of the attempted grave robbers of the remains of our second Editor Miss Rosine Boune-vialle. That will be for other pages where their names, photographs and details and those of their real backers and equally reptilian legal shysters will be made public.

To use an old boxing metaphor this was only round one. I do not fight using the Queensbury Rules but the Broughton.

What I will say here is that the grave robbers had to promise 2nd May 2017 at Portsmouth County Court that they would never disturb the lady's grave.

I here make a promise to you all. The so called St. George Educational Trust will never benefit or prosper from their actions.

Despite the worst efforts of the state and its stooges we have recently published the Candour ABC of Politics by our late editor Rosine de Bouneviaille.

Also I am pleased to report that we are printing the authorised fifth edition of Hidden Government (See next column).

That and a Candour double edition for March/April and this issue of Candour for June is a decent effort given the circumstances.

Relocated, and this may be in the North East of England, with a new secure base I and our archives and library safe we will step up our efforts further.

As ever we need your financial assistance. I know it is the old begging bowl. I do not like asking any more than most people like giving. In the world that we live or exist in courage and giving for the right reasons have become twisted and perverted.

I hope that our people are still not being swindled out of their life savings, pension funds or property by the spivs and con men of the likes of the now derelict British National Party (BNP) who are standing the amazingly low number of NINE candidates nationwide in the General Election of "who cares" when. Or the poor suckers who give their hard earned money to shyster bogus 'charities' such as the 'Saint George Educational Trust' which I hope will finally be ripped open and exposed for the pollutants that they really are.

How many times do I have to bang on about DUMB-OCRACY being a waste of effort, time and money. It is not rocket science to understand that we need our own land and properties. The £500 on yet another wasted election deposit could have bought how many square feet of land or bricks?

Update on the Alison Chabloz Legal Persecution

Please see the centre pages of this issue of Candour 869. The latest news from Alison, and I am going to have to paraphrase or mangle her latest email, so forgive me, is that of "Friday June 2, the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) informed my lawyer of their intention to discontinue the initial accusation for malicious communications brought against me by Gideon Falter of the so called Campaign Against Antisemitism for my song 'Survivors'.

This latest news of yet another charge against me being dropped will no doubt provoke yet more tears from the turgid trio of accusing females who are still gnashing their teeth on Twitter.

Regards the pending cases relating to the YouTube video of last September's London Forum performance, I am considering downloading both songs, removing the music and leaving just the laughter and applause.

The next hearing - for legal argument only - will be on June 23, 10am at Westminster Magistrates Court. The outcome may not only have a devastating effect on the right to be able to think for ourselves and express those thoughts, it may also severely undermine British values, traditions and artistic culture. Hope to see you there."

By a fortunate coincidence, I Colin Todd and my dog Boudicca may be able to attend the court, albeit outside obviously. If you can also make it the more the merrier. Our numbers are growing and we can all get a tea or coffee after.
